Massaging of tiles into spa design wins UK award

THE clever massaging of tiles, into an innovative design, in a Scottish spa, has won Beverly Bayes of Irish firm Douglas Wallace Architects a prize for creative tile use. She was awarded the Strata Tiles prize for the UK's most creative tile application, because of the way she captured the luxurious and tranquil atmosphere at the spa in the Old Course Hotel (right), St Andrews, through the use of mosaic and slate effect tiling, along with rugged stone from a local quarry. "We chose tiles that reflected the relaxing quality of the water," says Bayes.
